About This Game

Please, Don't Touch Anything is a cryptic, brain-racking button-pushing puzzle game.

Covering for a colleague taking a bathroom break, you find yourself in front of a mysterious console with a green screen monitor showing a pixelated live image of an unknown city. Also present is an ominous red button with the simple instruction to not touch anything!

Push the red button once or press it many times. Your choices and actions will lead to outrageous consequences and over 30 unique puzzle endings.

Scavenge the room for clues, tools, and buttons to solve riddles and trigger explosive events. This deceptively simple console has many mind-blowing surprises for you.

This updated version of the classic game features all new high-quality visuals, new mechanics, updated classic endings with new solutions, and a slew of new endings.

Go ahead, press the button. You know you want to.

I barely got a chance to play this game, never did. Only to check what was going on with my account. And yet my account still got banned because someone hijacked my Ankama account. Therefore Anakama thinks I shouldn't get a chance to get my account back. Do yourself a favor and don't play any of the Ankama games; Krosмага, Wakfu (the one I actually played) or Dofus. You might get permanently banned for leaving it alone for years... >.>. easy achievements got done all in first turn, simple paddle ball game, fire the ball at correct time and done, angle and speed matters a lot, and the speeding up makes it more good, as name is freebie but not free makes the game bit comic afterall, but overall it is a good game at that price.. Pretty good adaption of the main game. However, I would only recommend if you're going to be playing with friends online. The servers are empty otherwise, and while I haven't played the "Story mode", I can't imagine it being much fun on top of there not being really any incentives.. KOPEN GEKKEN :D

in ieder geval, de Humble Bundle :). Without a doubt the dumbest game I've ever played. I tried to give it some promise and chance by keeping up with whatever the hell was going on, but it was just too damn lame for me to continue. I mean, I understand that the developer(s) was going for a "spoof" styled game if you will, but jeez man, this shyt could've had a bit more effort put into it. The buzzing sound made more sense to me than anything in the game, and even that was just pointless. I'm no video game critiquer, but I had to let whoever reads this know how bad this is. Also, it most def isn't worth the price tag. It should've been free.

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=4s4M-jini9s>. This game is dead . no players . nothing.

An old childhood love of mine is Toonstruck.

I grabbed this whilst it was on sale in the hopes it'd relive some memories. It sure did but unfortunately there are a lot of issues with the Steam version.

No in-game menu except for the very start, if you accidentally fast-forward you lose dialogue being voiced (Seriously, who wants to miss out on voice actors such as Christopher Lloyd and Tim Curry?!) apart from cut scenes. The graphics are exactly the same as they were years ago, and it's pretty sad it wasn't updated even the tiniest bit.

For what it's worth, it's a nice bit of nostalgia but I'm sad to say that it really does need fixing a bit more before I'll find myself playing it again fully.. this game is cool

. The card mechanics have not aged well and there are much better modern card game alternatives.. This game has a ton of potential. Here's a few things I noticed:

- The E key didn't work for weapons, but the A button worked with an Xbox controller.
- Some explosions were missing when firing the rocket launcher.
- There might've been some missing sound FXs.
- The weapons feel okay, but some added muzzle flash would make them feel much better.
- I think the boss was activated too early in most cases, thus I heard constant gun fire and explosions off the screen.

All of this and more can be fixed and improved over time and if it does, it'll be a great game!

As it is now, it's a very solid early access build of the game with a very affordable price tag.

Keep it up! This is shaping up to be a fun game!. False Advertising Garbage.

Achievements are ALL bugged. None unlock.

As this game was sold with the Steam Achievements as an available feature, this is false advertising.

No response from the devs in months, abandonware.
